

It looks like you haven't yet experienced a Crucible Moment.

These experiences — events that are so painful they fundamentally change the trajectory of our lives — are hard to avoid. It is important to understand what they are and how to prepare for them if and when you experience a crucible moment. Please see the resources below to better understand what a Crucible Moment is and how to move forward from one.

Low Design, High Vision, Low Reality

You are a dreamer, and may spend a lot of time imagining what could be. Your thoughts are filled with possibility, with varying lives you wish to live. These dreams may not be grounded, however, or rooted in who you truly are. Because of this, you may have a difficult time bringing your dreams into reality and rallying a supportive network around you. Do you want your vision to become reality? It has a higher chance of doing so if it is in line with your design.

The first step to living a life of significance is to understand your Design. Once you understand how you are wired, you will be able to build from it, to cast a vision in line with who you are and bring it to reality to lead a life of significance. You can start with a personality test to see, at a high level, how you are wired. You can experiment with a few different avenues that speak to you to see what you feel best doing and what comes most naturally. Ask family and friends what they feel you are best at. Reflect on your successes and setbacks. Once you have a clearer understanding of who you are and how you are wired, you can take the next step and crystallize your Vision and bring it to Reality.

To better understand your results and access resources customized for you, visit:

Crucibleleadership.com/assessment/r021

Your results and links to additional resources have also been emailed to the address you provided.